Item 4 Advisory Business

The following paragraphs describe the Firm's advisory services.

DESCRIPTION OF SERVICES AND FEES
Addington Financial Group is a registered investment adviser based in Cypress Springs Village, Texas. The Firm is organized as a sole proprietorship. Addington Financial Group has been providing investment advisory services since 1996. Laura Lee Addington is the Firm's owner. The Firm offers the following investment advisory services, which are personalized to each client:

- Managed account services

Financial planning services are not offered separately, but are included in conjunction with managed account services.

MANAGED ACCOUNT SERVICES
Addington Financial Group offers discretionary and non-discretionary managed account services. The Firm's investment advice is tailored to meet clients' needs and investment objectives. If you retain the Firm for managed account services, an investment adviser representative will meet with you to determine your investment objectives, risk tolerance, and other relevant information (the "suitability information") at the beginning of our advisory relationship.

Managed Account Services provide clients with programs for investing their funds in response to their long-term needs. These programs typically begin with the development of a profile of the Client and a review of market data. This results in the formation of an investment model. The model serves to illustrate the interaction between a Client's objectives and constraints and the risk-reward alternatives of the market. A review of the model with the Client guides the development of a suitable investment policy. In turn, this investment policy serves as the blueprint for an investment plan. The outgrowth of this process is a set of reasonable working guidelines for the management of an investment portfolio. Portfolios constructed by Addington Financial Group typically include, but are not limited to stocks, bonds, mutual funds, and U.S. government securities. With the Client's approval, Addington Financial Group will then implement the plan in accordance with currently prevailing market conditions and the Client's expectations. Once the portfolio is constructed, Addington Financial Group will provide continuous supervision and rebalancing of the portfolio, as changes in market conditions and the Client's circumstances warrant. In addition, reports are prepared periodically for all accounts. These reports serve as the basis for monitoring the interim progress of the account.

If you participate in the Firm's discretionary portfolio management services, Addington Financial Group requires you to grant the Firm discretionary authority to manage your account. Discretionary authorization will allow the Firm to determine the specific securities, and the amount of securities, to be purchased or sold for your account without your approval prior to each transaction. Discretionary authority is typically granted by the investment advisory agreement you sign with the Firm, a power of attorney, or trading authorization forms. You may limit the Firm's discretionary authority (for example, limiting the types of securities that can be purchased for your account) by providing Addington Financial Group with your restrictions and guidelines in writing. If you enter into non-discretionary arrangements with Addington Financial Group, the Firm must obtain your approval prior to executing any transactions on behalf of your account.

Managed Account Services will be billed as a percentage of assets under management. Typically these fees are billed and payable quarterly in arrears based on the value of your account on the last day of the quarter. The Client will be advised of the payment arrangement prior to implementation of advisory services. In all cases this fee arrangement will be based on the following schedule:

Assets Under Management	Annual Fee
Up to $100,000	1.5%
$100,001 to $1,000,000	1.0%
$1,000,001 to $2,000,000	0.75%
Over $2,000,000	Negotiable (minimum 0.50%*)

*In limited circumstances and the firm's sole discretion, Addington Financial Group reserves the right to reduce the minimum .50% fee requirement.

FINANCIAL PLANNING SERVICES

Addington Financial Group offers broad-based, modular, and consultative financial planning services as an additional benefit to clients utilizing its managed account services. Financial planning is not offered as a separate and distinct service. Financial planning services may include risk management (life, health, disability and long-term health care insurance), tax, estate, investment, education, and retirement planning. The Firm does not charge an additional fee for these services.

Financial planning will typically involve providing a variety of advisory services to clients regarding the management of their financial resources based upon an analysis of their individual needs. If you retain the Firm for financial planning services, an investment adviser representative will meet with you to gather information about your financial circumstances and objectives. The Firm may also use financial planning software to determine your current financial position and to define and quantify your long-term goals and objectives.

ASSETS UNDER MANAGEMENT

As of January 7, 2014, discretionary assets under management held by Addington Financial Group are approximately $76,250,000. Addington Financial Group does not have any assets under management on a non-discretionary basis.

Item 5 Fees and Compensation

All fees are subject to negotiation.

The specific manner in which fees are charged by Addington Financial Group is established in a client's written agreement with Addington Financial Group. Addington Financial Group will generally bill its fees on a quarterly basis. Clients are billed in arrears each calendar quarter. Clients may also elect to be billed directly for fees or to authorize Addington Financial Group to directly debit fees from client accounts. Management fees shall not be prorated for each capital contribution and withdrawal made during the applicable calendar quarter (with the exception of de minimis contributions and withdrawals). Accounts initiated or terminated during a calendar quarter will be charged a prorated fee. Upon termination of any account, any prepaid, unearned fees will be promptly refunded, and any earned, unpaid fees will be due and payable.

Addington Financial Group's fees are exclusive of brokerage commissions, transaction fees, and other related costs and expenses which shall be incurred by the client. Clients may incur certain charges imposed by custodians, brokers, third party investment and other third parties such as fees charged by managers, custodial fees, deferred sales charges, odd-lot differentials, transfer taxes, wire transfer and electronic fund fees, and other fees and taxes on brokerage accounts and securities transactions. Mutual funds and exchange traded funds also charge internal management fees, which are disclosed in a fund's prospectus.

Such charges, fees and commissions are exclusive of and in addition to Addington Financial Group's fee, and Addington Financial Group shall not receive any portion of these commissions, fees, and costs.

Item 12 further describes the factors that Addington Financial Group considers in selecting or recommending broker-dealers for client transactions and determining the reasonableness of their compensation (e.g., commissions).

Termination of Contract
A Client may terminate an advisory agreement by giving 30 days written notice. There is no penalty for early termination. If the termination occurs within five days of signing the advisory contract, a full refund will be made of all amounts paid. If the termination occurs after this five-day period, any unearned amounts will be prorated and refunded to the Client. If the Client terminates the advisory agreement during a quarter, the Client will be charged a pro-rata portion of the advisory fee for the quarter up to the date of termination.

General Information on Advisory Services and Fees
All fees paid to Addington Financial Group for Managed Account and Financial Planning Services are separate and distinct from the fees and expenses charged by mutual funds to its shareholders. These fees and expenses are described in each fund's prospectus. These fees will generally include a management fee, other fund expenses, and a possible distribution fee.

The Client is under no obligation to act on the Firm's investment/financial recommendations. Moreover, if the Client elects to act on any of the recommendations, the Client is under no obligation to effect the transaction(s) through Addington Financial Group. The Client is free to select any brokerage firm or insurance agency or similar sales agency Client desires for implementation of the advice and recommendations provided by the firm.

The fee charged is calculated as described above and is not charged on the basis of a share of capital gains upon or capital appreciation of the funds or any portion of the funds of an advisory Client.

Although fees charged by Addington Financial Group are believed to be reasonable and competitive, lower fees for comparable services might be obtained from other sources.

Addington Financial Group will never have custody of the Clients' assets because the services of an outside, independent custodian are used.

Addington Financial Group does not represent, warranty or imply that the services or methods of analysis used by the firm can or will predict future results, successfully identify market tops or bottoms, or insulate Clients from losses due to market corrections or declines.

TYPES OF INVESTMENTS
Addington Financial Group offers advice on the following types of investments: equity securities, corporate debt securities, certificates of deposit, municipal securities, investment company securities (mutual funds), U.S. government securities, interests in partnerships investing in real estate, and any other investment that the Firm deems appropriate in order to address the individualized needs, goals, and objectives of the Client. You can find a detailed description of these investments and their risks in Item 8.

Item 6 Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

Addington Financial Group does not accept performance-based fees or participate in side-by-side management. Performance-based fees are fees that are based on a share of capital gains or capital appreciation of a client's account. Side-by-side management refers to the practice of managing accounts that are charged performance-based fees while at the same time managing accounts that are not charged performance-based fees. The Firm's fees are calculated as described in the Advisory Business section above, and are not charged on the basis of a share of capital gains upon, or capital appreciation of, the funds in your advisory account.

Item 7 Types of Clients

Addington Financial Group provides portfolio management services to individuals and high net worth individuals.

Item 8 Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

The statements below summarize the Firm's core beliefs and how they interact with Addington Financial Group's methods of analysis and investment strategies. These core beliefs are the underlying principles used in constructing your Investment Policy. Policy design, implementation, continuous monitoring and, as necessary, modification, are an integral part of the wealth management process. The Firm's success should not be measured by performance statistics, but rather by clients' success in achieving their goals.

Risk and Return Measures
Addington Financial Group believes in the use of appropriate mathematical measures of risk and return. The primary measure of risk should be standard deviation, which is a statistical measure of volatility. The primary measure of risk-adjusted return is the Sharpe Ratio. Duration, not maturity, is the appropriate measure of a bond's exposure to interest rate risk (within narrow rate changes). The Firm does not rely on classic technical analysis and market timing

Active Versus Passive
Addington Financial Group uses a mix of active and passive management strategies. In general, the Firm manages portfolios using traditional, quantitative and behavioral finance active strategies combined with passive strategies.

Asset Allocation
Addington Financial Group believes that the portfolio policy, or the mix of asset classes, is a significant determinant of long-term portfolio performance. Because of the overriding importance of the strategic asset allocation, the Firm rejects managers who do not have clearly defined philosophies or who diverge from their stated policies.

The Firm strives to maintain a strategic asset allocation and only infrequently revising that allocation. Addington Financial Group also rebalances to the strategic asset allocation. However, the influence of taxes and transaction costs leads to the conclusion that rebalancing with fairly wide bands of latitude is the most appropriate solution.

Optimization

Addington Financial Group uses mathematical optimization to design a strategic asset allocation model. It uses investment software called a portfolio optimizer. Addington Financial Group believes that an optimizer is simply a tool to be used by a knowledgeable wealth manager. The goal is to create a portfolio that is the most efficient and will produce the most return in relation to the amount of risk the Client is willing to accept.

Time Diversification

Addington Financial Group believes that the relative risk of increasing equity exposure decreases as the time horizon of the goal increases. The Firm does not believe that any "investment" should be made for a goal with less than a five-year time horizon. Funds required in fewer than five years should be placed in money markets or fixed income securities (e.g., CDs, Treasuries) with maturity dates equal to or less than the time when the Client anticipates needing the money.

IMPLEMENTATION

Among other investments, the Firm uses public and institutional mutual funds to implement its strategies. These mutual funds are selected and evaluated based on their philosophies, processes and people. Once selected, a mutual fund manager should be allowed periods of under-performance if the fund remains consistent to its philosophy and process. The fund should be replaced immediately if its strategy strays significantly from the stated philosophy or process. Evaluation of mutual fund managers should entail a detailed review of all available pertinent information, including both fundamental qualitative attribution and return factor analyses. Performance is measured against appropriate benchmarks, not broad market indices.

On-going Management

The Firm revises strategic allocations on an ongoing basis as a result of revised assumptions or changing client circumstances or goals. The Firm attempts to educate clients, always remaining sensitive to the volatility of each one's expectations. Addington Financial Group's responsibility is to assure that the client "stays the course" and does so with a minimum of emotional pain. The focus should always be the client and the achievement of his goals, not the performance of the portfolio.

Risk of Loss

Investing in securities involves risk of loss that you should be prepared to bear. The Firm does not represent or guarantee that its services or methods of analysis can or will predict future results, successfully identify market tops or bottoms, or insulate clients from losses due to market corrections or declines. In addition, the Firm cannot offer any guarantees or promises that your financial goals and objectives will be met. Past performance is in no way an indication of future performance.

Portfolios constructed by Addington Financial Group include, but are not limited to stocks, bonds, mutual funds, municipal bonds, and U.S. government securities. Each type of security has its own unique set of risks associated with it and it would not be possible to list here all of the specific risks of every type of investment. Even within the same type of investment, risks can vary widely. However, in very general terms, the higher the anticipated return of an investment, the higher the risk of loss associated with it.

There are numerous ways of measuring the risk of equity securities (also known simply as "equities" or "stock"). In very broad terms, the value of a stock depends on the financial health of the company issuing it. However, stock prices can be affected by many other factors including, but not limited to: the class of stock (for example, preferred or common); the health of the market sector of the issuing company; and, the overall health of the economy. In general, larger and more established companies ("large cap") tend to be safer than smaller start-up companies ("small cap"). Nevertheless, size alone is not an indicator by itself of the safety of an investment.

Corporate debt securities (or "bonds") are typically safer investments than equity securities, but their risk can also vary widely based on: the financial health of the issuer; the risk that the issuer might default; when the bond is set to mature; and, whether or not the bond can be "called" prior to maturity. When a bond is called, it may not be possible to replace it with a bond of equal character paying the same rate of return. A major risk of bonds is that the issuer may not be financially able to make payments as they come due. Furthermore, the value of bonds tend to go down as interest rates rise.

Although U.S. government securities are typically backed by the full faith and credit of the United States, their value may fluctuate depending upon direction of interest rates. Municipal securities, while generally thought of as safe, can have significant risks associated with them including, but not limited to: the credit worthiness of the governmental entity that issues the bond; the stability of the revenue stream that is used to pay the interest to the bondholders; when the bond is due to mature; and, whether or not the bond can be "called" prior to maturity. When a bond is called, it may not be possible to replace it with a bond of equal character paying the same amount of interest or yield to maturity.

Mutual funds are professionally managed collective investment systems that pool money from many investors and invest in stocks, bonds, short-term money market instruments, other mutual funds, other securities or any combination thereof. The fund will have a manager that trades the fund's investments in accordance with the fund's investment objective. While mutual funds generally provide diversification, risks can be significantly increased if the fund is concentrated in a particular sector of the market, primarily invests in small cap or speculative companies, uses leverage (i.e., borrows money) to a significant degree, or concentrates in a particular type of security (i.e., equities) rather than balancing the fund with different types of securities.

A limited partnership is a financial affiliation that includes at least one general partner and a number of limited partners. The partnership invests in a venture, such as real estate development, for financial gain. The general partner does not usually invest any capital, but has management authority and unlimited liability. That is, the general partner runs the business and, in the event of bankruptcy, is responsible for all debts not paid or discharged. The limited partners have no management authority and confine their participation to their capital investment. That is, limited partners invest a certain amount of money and have nothing else to do with the business. However, their liability is limited to the amount of the investment. In the worst case scenario for a limited partner, he/she loses what he/she invested. Profits are divided between general and limited partners according to an arrangement formed at the creation of the partnership.

Item 9 Disciplinary Information

Addington Financial Group has been registered and providing investment advisory services since 1996. Laura Lee Addington has been registered as either an investment adviser representative or registered representative since 1987. Neither the Firm nor Laura Lee Addington has any reportable disciplinary information.

Item 10 Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

Addington Financial Group has not provided information on other financial industry activities and affiliations, because the Firm does not have any relationship or arrangement that is material to its advisory business or to its clients.

Item 11 Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

Addington Financial Group strives to comply with applicable laws and regulations governing our practices. Therefore, our Code of Ethics includes guidelines for professional standards of conduct for persons associated with our firm. Our goal is to protect your interests at all times and to demonstrate our commitment to our fiduciary duties of honesty, good faith, and fair dealing with you. All persons associated with our firm are expected to adhere strictly to these guidelines. Persons associated with our firm are required to report any violations of our Code of Ethics. Additionally, we maintain and enforce written policies reasonably designed to prevent the misuse or dissemination of material, non-public information about you or your account holdings by persons associated with our firm.

Clients or prospective clients may obtain a copy of our Code of Ethics by contacting us at the telephone number on the cover page of this brochure.

Participation or Interest in Client Transactions
Neither our firm nor any persons associated with our firm has any material financial interest in client transactions beyond the provision of investment advisory services as disclosed in this brochure.

Personal Trading Practices
Our firm or persons associated with our firm may buy or sell the same securities that we recommend to you or securities in which you are already invested. A conflict of interest exists in such cases because we have the ability to trade ahead of you and potentially receive more favorable prices than you will receive. To mitigate this conflict of interest, it is our policy that neither our firm nor persons associated with our firm shall have priority over your account in the purchase or sale of securities.

Item 12 Brokerage Practices

For some Clients, particularly those Clients who do not already utilize a custodian, Addington Financial Group may recommend a broker. There is no requirement that a Client use the broker recommended. In recommending a broker, Addington Financial Group attempts to minimize the total cost for all brokerage services, and will generally recommend Fidelity Investments or Schwab Institutional. It may be the case that the recommended broker charges a higher fee for a particular type of service, such as commission rates, than can be obtained from another broker. It may also be the case that the total costs of all services provided by the recommended broker might be higher than can be obtained from another source. If Addington Financial Group determines, in good faith, that such total costs are reasonable in relation to the value of the brokerage and research services provided by such broker, viewed in terms of Addington Financial Group overall responsibility to Clients, the broker will be recommended.

Addington Financial Group frequently recommends the brokerage and custodial services of Fidelity Investments, a securities broker-dealer and a member of the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority and the Securities Investor Protection Corporation. The Firm believes that Fidelity Investments provides quality execution services for you at competitive prices. Price is not the sole factor considered in evaluating best execution. Addington Financial Group also considers the quality of the brokerage services provided by Fidelity Investments, including the value of research provided, the firm's reputation, execution capabilities, commission rates, and customer service. In recognition of the value of research services and additional brokerage products and services provided, you may pay higher commissions and/or trading costs than those that may be available elsewhere.

In selecting or recommending a broker-dealer, Addington Financial Group considers the value of research and additional brokerage products and services a broker-dealer has provided or will provide to clients and the Firm. Receipt of these additional brokerage products and services are considered to have been paid for with "soft dollars." Because such services could be considered to provide a benefit to Addington Financial Group, it may be a conflict of interest in directing your brokerage business. Fidelity provides Advisor Channel software for use in trading in client's accounts. This software also allows downloading to client reporting software and otherwise assists with back-office support.

Addington Financial Group does not receive client referrals from broker-dealers in exchange for cash or other compensation, such as brokerage services or research.

Item 13 Review of Accounts

REVIEW OF ACCOUNTS/REPORTS TO CLIENTS
Each account is reviewed quarterly by Ms. Addington. The account may be reviewed more often depending upon the complexity of the client's portfolio, its performance, as well as changes in the economy, market conditions, tax laws, or the client's needs. The occurrence of a major event in the life of a client (e.g. death, disability, inheritance, employment status change, marital status change, retirement, etc.) will also be a triggering factor that causes the adviser to review the account. Reviews with the client are performed at least annually.

Quarterly performance reports will be given to the Client, along with any other pertinent information, from the custodian. The Firm will provide performance reports to Clients on an as needed basis, and at the Client's request.

Item 14 Client Referrals and Other Compensation

Addington Financial Group does not receive any compensation from any third party in connection with providing investment advice to you nor does the Firm compensate any individual or firm for client referrals.

Item 15 Custody

Addington Financial Group directly debits your account(s) for the payment of advisory fees. The Firm does not have physical custody of any of your funds and/or securities. Your funds and securities will be held with a bank, broker-dealer, or other independent qualified custodian. You will receive account statements from the qualified custodian holding your funds and securities at least quarterly. The account statements from your custodian will indicate the amount of the Firm's advisory fees deducted from your account(s) each billing period.

Addington Financial Group urges you to carefully review such statements and compare such official custodial records to the account statements that are provided to you. Those statements may vary from custodial statements based on accounting procedures, reporting dates, or valuation methodologies of certain securities.

Item 16 Investment Discretion

Addington Financial Group usually receives discretionary authority from the client at the onset of an advisory relationship to select the identity and amount of securities to be bought or sold. In all cases, however, such discretion is to be exercised in a manner consistent with the stated investment objectives for the particular client account. You can learn more about our discretionary authority by reading Item 4.

When selecting securities and determining amounts, Addington Financial Group observes the investment policies, limitations and restrictions of the clients for which it advises. For registered investment companies (mutual funds), Addington Financial Group's authority to trade securities may also be limited by certain federal securities and tax laws that require diversification of investments and favor the holding of investments once made.

Investment guidelines and restrictions must be provided to Addington Financial Group in writing.

Item 17 Voting Client Securities

As a matter of firm policy and practice, Addington Financial Group does not have any authority to and does not vote proxies on behalf of advisory clients. Clients retain the responsibility for receiving and voting proxies for any and all securities maintained in client portfolios. Addington Financial Group may provide advice to clients regarding the clients' voting of proxies

Item 18 Financial Information

Registered investment advisers are required in this Item to provide you with certain financial information or disclosures about Addington Financial Group's financial condition. Addington Financial Group has no financial commitment that impairs its ability to meet contractual and fiduciary commitments to clients, and has not been the subject of a bankruptcy proceeding.

The CFP® certification is a voluntary certification; no federal or state law or regulation requires financial planners to hold CFP certification. It is recognized in the United States and a number of other countries for its (1) high standard of professional education; (2) stringent code of conduct and standards of practice; and (3) ethical requirements that govern professional engagements with clients. - Education - Complete an advanced college-level course of study addressing the financial planning subject areas that CFP Board's studies have determined as necessary for the competent and professional delivery of financial planning services, and attain a Bachelor's Degree from a regionally accredited United States college or university (or its equivalent from a foreign university). CFP Board's financial planning subject areas include insurance planning and risk management, employee benefits planning, investment planning, income tax planning, retirement planning, and estate planning;
